Dear Pacific Coast Shellfish Grower and Allied Members,

The member-suggested idea to provide easy to access information to PCSGA members has blossomed into a valuable, desk-side resource. I've relied upon the Resource Catalog several times throughout the year and appreciate its simplicity and ease of use. In the digital age in which we live, I find it comforting to not have to wait for an image to "load" nor wonder under what "tab" I should search.

In this, our fourth printing of the PCSGA Resource Catalog, you'll find a thorough list of shellfish-related products and service providers as well important contact information for resource agency personnel and a calendar of events. Please continue to tell us how we can make this Resource Catalog and all other PCSGA endeavors even more useful.

Thank you for being part of this shellfish community and for your essential role in producing the world’s best shellfish.

Sincerely,

Margaret A. Pilaro

Shellfish Diet

“We use Reed’s algae concentrates to supplement our own live algae production during the times of year when our shellfish are ‘eating us out of house and home’. It allows us to grow more and larger oysters and clams early in the season before moving them to the nursery.”

Pro-Oceanus offers several ranges of dissolved CO₂ sensors for monitoring water conditions in hatcheries and shellfish habitats.

Monitoring CO₂ is essential to ensuring shellfish health at all life stages. With increasing duration and severity of acidification events, measurement of dissolved CO₂ is critical to future shellfish survival.

The right equipment choice to keep shellfish happy and healthy is easy with consultation from the Pro-Oceanus Scientific Team.
